Vivo Breaks its Own Shipment Record: Ships 5.8 mn Smartphones

New Delhi, As per the latest Canlys Q2 2019 report, vivo India has registered an impressive 63% annual growth and has broken its previous shipment record of 3.6 million units (Q2,2018) and clocked a whopping 5.8 million units in Q2,2019. This is during the same quarter when India's overall smartphone shipment declined by 0.5%. As per the report, the top selling devices this quarter (Q2), were the Y17 and Y91, which shipped over 1.5 million units. Having secured and sustained growth leadership, vivo India has fortified its customer outreach by launching smartphones with innovative and ground-breaking technologies across price points. By launching devices in both the less than 20K segment (Y series) and the 20k plus segment (V series), vivo was able to secure the third position with 18% market share in Q2, 2019, up from 10% a year ago and 15% in Q1, 2019.

Sharing his thoughts on the accomplishments, Mr. Nipun Marya, Director-Brand Strategy, vivo India said, "The continued growth momentum is a testimony to vivo's innovation in products and an unremitting focus on customers. We have always believed in keeping the fundamentals right and building a competitive product portfolio that offers unique value.

ZTE patents for slider design, dual selfie camera device

Beijing, Chinese handset maker ZTE has filed a patent for a smartphone with a slider design and two selfie cameras. This comes barely a month after the company filed a patent for a smartphone with dial punch-hole cameras. The patent diagram reveals that the phone will sport two front cameras which will be hidden behind the display and are only revealed when the top slider is moved down.

However, the rear panel of the device reveals a setup of two cameras and fingerprint sensor, a report in tigermobiles.com said on Sunday. According to the patent diagram, the smartphone has a volume rocker and power key on its right side and the SIM card slot on the left. At the top is the headphone jack, with the USB-C port and primary microphone located at the bottom.

All three 2020 iPhone models to support 5G: Report

San Francisco, Apple analyst Ming-Chi Kuo has told investors that all three iPhone models slated for release next year would support 5G technology. Kuo said earlier that the next year's 5.4-inch and 6.7-inch iPhone models would support 5G while a third — a cheaper 6.1-inch iPhone XR successor — would only access LTE networks. "Now he has issued a new report that all three iPhone models would support 5G," The Verge reported on Sunday. "We now believe that all three new 2H20 iPhone models would support 5G for the following reasons. (1) Apple has more resource for developing the 5G iPhone after the acquisition of Intel base-band business. (2) We expect that the prices of 5G Android smartphones will decline to $249-349 in 2H20.

"We believe that 5G Android smartphones, which will be sold at $249-349, would only support Sub-6GHz. But the key is that consumers will think that 5G is the necessary function in 2020," Kuo was quoted as saying. According to reports, Apple would continue to use Qualcomm modems for its 2020 lineup despite new acquisition. The recent acquisition of Intel's smartphone modem chip business for $1 billion would give the company more resources for developing the 5G iPhone. The iPhone maker would launch three iPhone 11 models in September this year.

Apple registers 2 more iPad models this year

San Francisco, Apple is likely to expand its iPad line-up as it has registered two tablet models, A2200 and A2232 with the Eurasian Economic Commission (EEC) to launch later this year. The company has already registered five new model numbers — A2197, A2228, A2068, A2198 and A2230 with the EEC earlier this year. According to the EEC filings, all seven iPads could ship with iPadOS 13, indicating that they are likely to be released this autumn, Apple Insider reported on Sunday.

The Cupertino-based company has released at least one new model of the iPad Pro each year since its launch in 2015, including the third-generation line released in October 2018. According to a recent report, the iPhone maker is working on a new 5G-enabled iPad with a foldable display and could launch it in 2020. The rumour comes from London-based global information provider IHS Markit's analyst Jeff Lin, who has claimed that Apple was quietly working on such a device. The product would feature MacBook sized screens. Currently, none of the present Apple devices support 5G connectivity.

Huawei's foldable smartphone 'Mate X' still being optimised

Beijing, Chinese smartphone manufacturer Huawei is still optimising the foldable Mate X smartphone and would not make it public without meeting quality requirements, the company's director of consumer business mobile phones He Gang has said. According to the executive, Mate X is still undergoing optimization to meet the company's stringent and high quality requirements. "It's actually taking a lot longer and is requiring more effort than initially anticipated. And if it doesn't meet those requirements, we won't put out the phone," Gang was quoted as saying in a Chinese portal news.mydrivers.com. After extensive tests, Huawei Mate X has passed 3C certification and network access license.
