Apple to offer trade-in for LG smartphone users in S Korea

The South Korean unit of Apple will run a trade-in programme to woo LG smartphone users, industry insiders said on Friday, in a move to expand its presence on the home turf of Samsung Electronics, the world's largest smartphone vendor.

Apple's smartphone exchange scheme with local mobile carriers will pay the trade-in value of a mobile device and an additional $135 to those who replace their LG smartphones with iPhones, according to the sources in the telecom industry.

People who have used LG's 4G and 5G smartphones for more than a month will be eligible to apply for the program scheduled to run through September 25.

They can exchange their LG smartphones for Apple's iPhone 12 or iPhone 12 mini.

Such a promotion is separate from existing trade-in programs by local mobile carriers that are subscriptionbased, reports Yonhap news agency.

This is the first time that Apple has decided to launch a trade-in programme for users of other smartphone brands. It will run exclusively in South Korea.
